Gift to a girl becomes the gift from a woman

By Angela Widdis

Frances (Fran) Wooley, of Coloma, finds herself to be a real historian. The 94-year-old retired Whirlpool employee sees her postcards as documents of her family's history and of everyday American life in the 20th century.

The gift to the girl

The love of history was started when her late grandmother, Helena (Anderson) Froberg, started giving her birthday gifts from her own possessions. Money was tight in those times so one year, for her birthday, Fran was given her grandmother's postcard and greeting card collection that she had started with cards that date back to 1905. Wooley stated that, "At the time I had no idea of the value."

As a young girl, Fran recalls that she played with the cards. She would spend hours sorting and resorting them until the album they once were contained in fell into disrepair. She reminisced that many of the cards in her collection were sent from relatives that would be written in Swedish and Norwegian so she, herself, could not read them.

Little did she know that this gift would lead to a life-long pursuit to research her family's genealogy. As the family stories told on the back and the photo or art on the front of these cards gave Fran many years of enjoyment as well as, glimpses into people and countries that she never knew. She became intrigued by the mystery of who these people were, where they came from, and the hope that she could find out more.

In later years, Wooley was able to build a record of history by placing the cards in chronological order. Allowing her to trace her family history from Harnosand, Sweden to these greetings can be seen over the decades. Though it is true, the popularity of these correspondences is tied with the development of the postal service, the growth can also be traced to new printing capabilities and photography techniques of the times.

RELISHING THE PAST... Frances (Fran) Wooley fondly recalls the years of enjoyment that her postcard and greeting card collection has given her.

One of the first introductions of the postcard was at the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago. It was here when the first commercially produced picture postcards were seen as Charles W. Goldsmith produced a novelty set of postcards depicting the pavilions and other interesting sections of the fair as a souvenir.

During the 1900s the postcard became a method of fast communication as the postal service would run versation pieces for people visiting one another. As the popularity of the postcard, then later the greeting card, would grow, so would the collection.

Within a collection one could find a love-letter between two young people, memories of a voyage to a foreign country, or a photo of your hometown before the streets were paved. Now, they are collected by not only family historians, but people who have an interest in art, architecture, history, and much more.

The gift from a woman

Because many of Fran's postcards captured scenes, places, and people that no longer exist – such as opulent buildings from a long-ago world's fair or World War II-era – she has ended up preserving pieces of history

POSTAL CARD COLLECTION
by Frances (Froberg) Wooley
3 May 2001

This collection was given to me by my grandmother, Helene (Anderson) Froberg when I was very young. At that time, had no idea of the value. It was contained in a photograph albumn. However, for purposes of organizing the cards and to protect them, they are now in plastic covers and arranged according to date where possible to establish a chronology of the family. Many of the cards are written in Swedish and Norwegian and are from relatives in those countries. Others are from relatives and friends in Chicago and some of them are written in Swedish. Often one family would simply address cards to another familiy and enclose them all in one envelope, hence the absence of street addresses and postage stamps.

When the Frobergs arrived in Chicago (Cook) Illinois from their respective homes in Sweden and Norway, and after their marriage there in 1880, they resided in 1905 and 1906 at 2450 W. Ontario St. in Chicago.

Their first home after moving to Benton Harbor (Berrien) Michigan in 1907 was 131 Broadway, Benton Harbor (Berrien) MI.

Also in 1907, mother Helene was in Chicago living at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Anna and Al Von Sar. Youngest son, William was with her and in March 1908 wrote a card to his brother, Arthur, at the Brunson Ave. address where they had moved by December 1907. The address there was: 173 Brunson Ave., Benton Harbor. By October 1908, they had moved to 149 Heck Ct., Benton Harbor.

Fourteenth of August, 1909, Helene was at 6214 Michigan St., Chicago, with the Von Sars. (Note: Daughter Violet Von Sar was born in August before 11th day.)

In October 1910, the Von Sars traveled by train to California and on way, mailed cards from Cheyenne, Wyoming. They arrived in San Francisco and took up residence in Oakland at 1632 8th St.

Helene traveled to Oakland in the fall of 1911 and stayed until about May 1912 when she returned to Michigan. She received cards there at Christmas time and for the New Year. It appears that she did not travel to California with the Von Sars. On 26 September 1911, youngest son William (age 12) wrote a card to his brother, David at the Heck Ct. address from Laramie, Wyoming. In October 1911, son David (then 19 years of age) and on his way to California, sent a card to his father at 146 Washington St., Benton Harbor from Kansas City, Missouri In April 1912, they were living at this Washington St. address. Cannot tell if any of the other children accompanied Helene to California. Her husband, Olof, did not go.

At the time of the marriage of my parents in 1918, the Froberg family resided on Colfax Avenue, Benton Harbor, address unknown. My mother commented on the fact that she could look out over the St. Joseph River and see St. Joseph where her relatives lived.

My mother was working at the Cooper Wells Hosery Mill in St. Joseph and met my father at a carnival on the bluff in St. Joseph. She was stuck at the top of a stalled Ferris Wheel ride and my father was in a group calling back and forth to the people stuck on the Ferris Wheel. At that time she was living in St. Joseph with her aunt and family.

They were married in 1918. My father was in the Army and home on furlough and then went back to Ft. Custer. They put him on hospital duty and so he never had to go overseas.

I was born in January, 1926. In July 1926, a doctor came to the house and gave my father an injection for strep throat. It was the wrong drug and he died instantly. I was 6 months old.

Albin Froberg died in 1926. Because his wife, Rose, was unable to cope with the situation at that time, her brother-in-law, William Froberg took charge. He bought 2 burial plots at the above named cemetery and ordered the double-wide tombstone. The 2 lots he selected were in the same section as his parents, Olof & Helena Froberg.

IN HER NAME

In December of 1936, Rose's 2nd husband, Herman Collins, died. Because it was winter, Rose had him buried in the space reserved for her beside her 1st husband.

LOT 545 SOUTH

In June 1937, Rose selected a plot of 6 burial spaces and had both Albin and Herman removed to the new site as well as the original Froberg double tombstone that Bill had ordered in 1926.

At the same time, June 1937, Mrs. C. W Hildebrandt (Lola Collins) purchased from Rose Collins one of the burial sites for her mother and Herman's mother, Martha Collins for died in 1943.

LOT 545 SOUTH

A few years late, when the 2md husband of Vera (Collins) Stribey/Slmith , James Smith died, Vera Smith (sister of Herman & Lola), purchased 2 burial plots next the 6 that Rose Colloins had purchased.

As of December 2015, there is one (1) burial site left adjacent to the Collins plot that is owned by Vera (Collins) ~~Stribey/Smith~~/Carr. Proof of ownership came be made by a member of Vera's family or a next of kin by providing the cemetery with evidence of relationship. It could be sold or donated. There is a cost of $90 to do this. Lots are now selling for $350. each.
